Sercel Delivers 750th NOMAD Vibrator

Sercel is pleased to announce the delivery of its 750th NOMAD 65 vibrator. The 750th NOMAD 65 was delivered as one of twelve vibrators ordered by SINOPEC ShengLi Geophysical Corp., the largest land seismic contractor for China Petrochemical Corporation.

Recognized for its superior robustness, easy maintenance and operating versatility, the NOMAD 65 can be customized to operate in all field environments and is field-proven in extreme conditions ranging from -50°C to 55°C. The NOMAD 65 provides 62,000 lbf peak force, broadband sweep capability ranging from 1 to 250 Hz, and offers interchangeable tire or track capacity.

As the third generation of Sercel vibrators, the NOMAD family is designed to deliver the highest quality signal fidelity while offering superior reliability, productivity and safety. With a very strong client base, NOMAD vibrators are operated worldwide by more than 45 clients in over 30 countries.

Mr. Ju Shaohua, Land Special Equipment Expert, SINOPEC ShengLi Geophysical Corp., said: "We have been purchasing Sercel vibrators since 2001 due to their excellent performance, good stability and high productivity, in addition to Sercel's superior after-sales service and support. It is our great honor to have purchased the 750th Nomad 65 from Sercel."

Pascal Rouiller, CEO, Sercel, said: "We are very pleased with the proven success of the NOMAD over the past ten years and would like to thank SINOPEC ShengLi Geophysical Corp. for their continuing support. Our consistent R&D efforts have ensured the NOMAD offers the latest capabilities and continues to set the standard for vibrator source performance."
